Company Announcement

OMAHA, Neb., April 2016 – James P. Dale, Principal and Owner of Seven Citadels Consulting was recently awarded the professional designation of Certified Threat Manager™ through the Association of Threat Assessment Professionals (ATAP). Designation as a CTM acknowledges the certificate holder as a subject matter expert with the knowledge, experience and skills to perform threat assessments and threat management. The CTM meets the highest standard for professional certification programs required by the National Association for Certifying Agencies (NCCA).

Dale has thirty years of security and investigative experience and was previously the senior security executive for Fortune 500 companies Avery Dennison, ConAgra Foods, and Inacom. In addition to his designation as a CTM, Dale is board certified in security management and a Certified Fraud Examiner. Before his experience in the private sector, Dale was a career officer and special agent with the Air Force Office of Special Investigation (AFOSI). Along with other assignments Dale commanded a large investigative unit in New York, was chief of counterintelligence for AFOSI units in the Midwest, and served as a plans officer at AFOSI Headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Dale is a member of the International Association of Professional Security Consultants and ASIS International. He is on the board of directors for the non-profit At Ease USA, is a Trustee with the Greater Omaha Business Ethics Alliance, and is a member of the Better Business Bureau's Fraud Taskforce. In addition to numerous military awards and decorations, Dale is the recipient of the Award for Public Service from the U.S. Department of Justice and was awarded the Citation for Life Saving by the Omaha Fire Department in 2004. He graduated from the University of Nebraska – Omaha.
